Presidents Report

Good morning Fellow Shed members,

As this issue of the Cutting Edge goes to print the committee is considering whether to close the Shed due to the Coronavirus outbreak. I am reluctant to do this, but the vast majority of the membership is in the “most vulnerable” category; being the (elderly) over 65 years. We have had communications from AMSA (the Men’s Shed governing body) but most of what they are telling us is what the politicians and health professionals have been saying for the last week or so. By now all members should have been sent a copy via email. If you haven’t please see one of the Committee members.

The other issue is the things we all touch and how to prevent any possibility of transition in this fashion. Toughing objects, such as the sign-on book and pen, isn’t an issue if you wash your hands and never touch your face. Perhaps everyone should bring their own pen to sign-on. But we share all the tools and touch the start buttons on all the machine. Cleaning these start buttons after every use would become a nightmare in itself.

However, the objects which concern me most are the taps on the sink and hot water urn. Everyone touches these, to make a cuppa, and then sit down and have some food; and in doing so touch our faces. Then we all sit in close proximity to each other.

Personally, I think we should leave it up to the individual member to decide if they feel they are in a most vulnerable position. Certainly, if are taking medications which lower your immune response you need to stay away from the Shed. However, the Committee will discuss all of the pros and cons and make a decision whether to close the Shed and for how long.

The Bunnings BBQ at the Dural Store, on February 23 was a great success. Although, money wise it was not as good as some previous outings, the participation of some many members was excellent. These events are a very important part of the Shed’s fund raising and helps to keep the annual fees to a minimum. Thank you to all the Members who turned up and to David Tarran for his organising of the event. (See David’s report below).

Our tool sale at the North Rocks Markets was cancelled due to the impending bad weather, which didn’t eventuate. We have so many tools we are intending to hold another tool sale this weekend, Sunday March 22 and again on Sunday March 29. This is another important component of our fund raising and I’d urge you to come along and help out on the day. Please see Fred Blaauw if you can help. If you see a tool that you would like to purchase, before the tool sale, see one of the Committee and we can work out a favourable price.

Safety is our major priority. Think safe and work safe! We keep harping on about this and I want everyone to go home with ten fingers and two eyes. On a number of occasions I have found that the Planner has been left running and unattended. Although there is a cover over the rotating cutters is a dangerous situation as the machine is quiet and can't be heard over the ambient noise in the Shed. The committee has decided to have a "running" light installed on the machine to indicate that it is on, similar to that on the Saw Stop table saws. This will, I hope, remind the operator to switch it off then they are finished or if you see the running light glowing and the machine unattended you can turn it off.

The toy makers are completing the "Thomas the Tank Engines". This is a simplified design and has taken much of the work out of constructing them. Thanks to David Boyd (VP) for his work here. We have also decided not to paint them, which has eased the workload again.

I hope you enjoy the meeting

Kevin Wallace
